

Review of: "Hepatitis C prevalence and quality of health services among HIV-positive mothers in the Democratic Republic of the Congo"

Guy-Lucien Whembolua<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> University of Cincinnati

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The paper is well written, and the topic is significant since there are scarce studies on health services in the Democratic Republic of the Congo. Moreover, its results have the potential to provide the tools needed to not only improve the quality of health services but also the prevention of mother-to-child transmission of HIV and Hepatitis C.