This is a proactive study on mitigating poverty by reestablishing good agricultural practices in Nigeria. However, I would suggest the following.

1. I advise a title change, as the title do not do justice to the article.
2. The manuscript needs spelling check.
3. The manuscript needs proper referencing.
4. All factors for training are well put in place, but what factors are in place for sustainability of the training on carbon emissions?
5. For this type of large-scale investment, not putting pest and diseases control into consideration is not practical.
Considering improved and diseases resistance plant would be a good start.
