Summing up, the work conforms to the structure, methodology, and contributions of an academic research study in terms of relevance. The literature review is not enough, most recent literature reviews should be added, it needs to be read again in order to have a discussion amongst authors and to clearly identify the status of the literature, the literature gap, and your contribution.

The equations and formulas used in the work are well articulated by the author. The data set used and the results of the analysis are congruent. As such, I believe that the work done so far by the author meets the minimum threshold for publication. The writer clearly explains the equations and formulas utilized in the work.

As a result, I think the authors' current body of work fits the requirements for publishing.
