

Review of: "Strengthening Healthcare in Bangladesh: Challenges and Pathways to Equity and Quality"

Tania Uchida¹

¹ Universidade Estadual de Maringá

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The study proposal is significant, but a clear and objective research design is necessary. The challenges highlighted are common problems in healthcare systems, whether universal or not. There are research methodologies that help in depth to identify problems, for example, qualitative methodologies, whether through interviews or focus groups, with managers, health professionals, and users, making it possible to generate evidence for the real needs encountered in the practice of health services.