

Review of: "Establishing a Multidisciplinary Human Resources Development Institute Under Public-Private Partnerships"

José Luis Franco Miguel<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Universidad Internacional De La Rioja

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

1. My review is positive for the article reviewed because I find it very interesting and a good contribution to advance in the knowledge of public-private partnerships, which are not yet sufficiently researched, as is human resources development. Public-private partnerships have been widely researched in fields such as health management or infrastructure.
2. My opinion is positive regarding the admission of the article to be published, although I recommend some improvements before launching a final version of the article.
3. In concrete terms, in point number 5 of the article, I strongly recommend explaining the potential benefits of PPP in human resources, and also explaining more deeply the potential limitations identified. I think it is very important to strengthen the research and contribution of the article. In its actual version, the benefits and limitations are enumerated but not explained. It is important to explain clearly why they are considered benefits and limitations.