I reviewed the whole manuscript. So, the following modifications are recommended:

1. Bringing the number of people in the title is not appropriate
2. The introduction is good. Only in paragraph 4 of the first line, there is no need to express the concept of empowerment. Because it has nothing to do with the title and takes the mind away from the title
3. Should the study entry and exit criteria be mentioned? Were all samples included in the study? Or did they fall out?
4. If age, sex, and marital status are considered as confounding variables, why did you mention their relationship with the main variables in the results? Why are they not removed?
5. Try not to repeat your results in the discussion section. Rather, compare it with other studies
6. When the results of your study are read, it is as if you wanted to measure the validity and reliability of the instrument. Why is this?
7. What tool did you use? State clearly
