

Review of: "Factors Associated with Contraceptive Use Among Migrant Female Head Porters in the Kumasi Metropolis"

Samuel Ampaw

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The explores the determinants of contraceptive use among an underprivileged group (migrant female head porters) in Ghana. The research problem is well explained. I have two comments that could improve the study.

1. The paper's contribution is not explicit. How different is it from existing works (e.g., Alatinga et al., 2021; Avissah et al., 2018)?
2. Is the dependent variable use of any method (traditional or modern) of contraception?Condom use seems to fits the STI prevention narrative best. A subsection describing the statistical strategy used might help readers understand how the dependent variable was measured.
3. The results presentation/description could be improved.