

Review of: "Challenges in Reducing Maternal Mortality Rate in Pakistan"

Abdesslam Boutayeb<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Université Mohammed Premier

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

I found that the content of this manuscript is interesting in dealing with the crucial issue of maternal mortality in Pakistan. However, the authors can improve this paper, notably on the following points:

(1) As stressed by earlier comments and suggestions made by previous reviewers, the authors should consider the well known guidelines for writing a paper (abstract, main text, references, ...), (2) Including some tables and/or figures may be very helpful for readers, (3) Including comparative data between regions, rural and urban, educated and non educated women and income quintiles should help policymakers who are seeking optimal and efficient strategies to reduce maternal mortality especially in developing countries like Pakistan, suffering from ill-health systems, lack of health human and material facilities et..