Dear Author,

I was willing to review this work because I thought the subject was interesting (mimicry behavior). Unfortunately, while reading it I found very little information on the mimicry behavior. The data about tropical species could be better organized/reviewed so you could provide an interesting contribution to the literature, even if there is not too much data on tropical species.

While reading your work I also found it difficult to identify the relationships between the studies you have selected and the story on mimicry behavior. I was also surprised when I reached the conclusion, which is also not related to mimicry behavior. Maybe you could consider reorganizing your manuscript and reviewing your objectives so the readers can learn more about this interesting Diptera family.

Kind regards
