

Review of: "'Women come out for less important tasks': Understanding the reality of the gendered transport sector in Karachi through Key-Informant Interviews"

April Mackey¹

¹ University of Saskatchewan

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This was an engaging and articulate manuscript! The authors do an exceptional job of highlighting the intersections between power, gender, and transport! My comments are as follows:

1. There was some overlap between the introduction and background. Suggest reworking for clarity.
2. The methods section is missing some key details on the research design and rationale, how the sample was identified.
3. There were some grammatical errors throughout that affected comprehension at time. Suggest a thorough reread and edit.

With the above adjustments, especially with regards to methodological detail, this manuscript meets the criteria for publication.