The paper briefly reviewed the efficacy and mechanisms of various cupping treatments for COVID19, but some of the mechanisms were derived from other diseases, which is less convincing. From the point of literature into, the world federation of Chinese medicine societies pulmonary rehabilitation professional committee jointly issued a new coronavirus pneumonia (version 1) rehabilitation of traditional Chinese medicine expert consensus in 2020 which does not appear in the references of this article, which has described the applicable condition of COVID19. Furthermore, meridians and acupoints are mentioned in detailed advice. It is suggested to modify the title to review the efficacy and mechanism of cupping therapy in the treatment of COVID-19.
