

Review of: "Analysing crimes in public spaces of New Delhi through news reports: The need and possibility of integrating Crime Prevention through Environmental Design Principles."

R.B. Leksono

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This topic is a current discussion trend, and the idea of using criminal records as a fact analysis is creative. However, some of my notes are as follows; 1) the discussion sometimes seems mixed with arguments about the impact of environmental design on accidents, I hope it will focus on crime prevention. 2) I think some detailed explanations regarding the crimes that occurred do not need to be explained so as not to be vulgar for some readers, 3) Before you present the pie chart on the results and analysis, it would be better to start with a narrative explaining the process, 4) finally, I feel 91% This is a fairly large number, therefore it would be very good to increase the number and extent of research cases, as well as other strengthening of the methodology to be more convincing in the conclusions.