Well done on a thorough study and adding value to your field.

Some ways you could improve your article:

Your literature is extensive, and streamlining this part is crucial for the readability of your study.

Some of the tables and figures could be simplified or more effectively integrated into the narrative to aid reader comprehension.

Reframe your discussion of the Covid-19 pandemic, as we are no longer in it, but it may have implications for teaching and learning.

To increase its suitability for publication, the authors should consider tightening the narrative for coherence, refining the presentation of data for clarity, and expanding the discussion on implications for a broader educational context.

I also suggest creating an infographic where you summarise your study and findings.
