The topic is interesting and can yield fascinating results.

The language is reader-friendly, making it easy to read and comprehend. The flow of the paper is fine and coherent.

However, the paper is too general in its scope. While the authors discuss various aspects of diversity and inclusion in India, they missed the opportunity to delve into how diversity and inclusion have contributed to innovation-led growth in the country. Providing data and figures on this matter would be beneficial for policymakers and political leaders in leveraging diversity and inclusion for fostering innovations.
