

Review of: "Contraindications to Intermittent Pneumatic Compression: Between Lines of Recommendations"

jean-Patrick Benigni

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Rather interesting article, but certainly too long (article for a medical journal or for a book?) .

Minor vocabulary corrections are necessary: to treat an infection, we use antibiotic therapy, not pharmacotherapy.

There are other cases in the text.

Major corrections are mandatory :

. Outline. Sub-chapters and summary tables are missing to make reading easier.

. The clinical trials are not graded (1A,1B,1C,2A,2B,2C). This means that no recommendations can be drawn from them.

. The usual pressures of use are not specified, nor the number of cuffs, nor the limb segments treated, nor the recommended protocols for use.

In conclusion, a summary article that needs to be reworked to achieve its didactic goal.
