

Review of: "The Ancient Indian Knowledge System and the Medical Sciences"

Pawan Prabhakar¹

¹ Indian Institute of Technology Kharagpur

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article is superficially written and in abstract section there is no mention of Ayurveda and nadi-priksha while in Introduction conclusion section suddenly it appears. Introduction is also not focused and a very common and generalised view of Indian medicinal system is acknowledged with very short descriptions. Author needs to re-write the paper carefully and critically discussed about the Indian Medicinal system, its challenges and future perspectives with clear vision of what they want to deliver. In some places paragraphs are not interlinked and some grammatical errors are also there. Please first draft the whole manuscript with suitable sections and subsections which completes the flow and objectives of the review.