- SUMMARY: State the year in which the study took place.

SUMMARY: State how the outcome of the study (violation of human rights) was measured.

SUMMARY: State the type of data analysis carried out in the study.

- INTRODUCTION: Conceptualize what the authors consider to be "human rights violations."

INTRODUCTION: Reviewing the writing of the passage, it seems to generalize a view about Nigerians by pointing out that people in Nigeria have several misconceptions about mental health treatment.

INTRODUCTION: Bring some epidemiological data from Nigeria on mental illness or human rights violations.

INTRODUCTION: The aim of the study appears twice in the introduction. Appearing once would be enough.

- METHODOLOGY: Detail the study's exclusion criteria.

METHODOLOGY: What was the parameter used to assess the health of the participants? Since only the "relatively sane" were interviewed.

METHODOLOGY: Describe how the study outcome was measured. How it was defined that the outcome was present or absent in the participants.

METHODOLOGY: What was the profession of the survey interviewers? During which period was the study carried out?

- RESULTS: Complete the information in the title of Table 2. Include location, origin of data, collection period, specify that they are patients of services mainly focused on mental health.
RESULTS: Complete the information in the title of Table 3. Include location, collection period, specify that they are patients of services mainly focused on mental health.
RESULTS: Complete the information in the title of Table 4. Include location, collection period, specify that they are patients of services mainly focused on mental health.
RESULTS: Table 4: Include a legend for the acronyms used. Complete the title of the table as well.
RESULTS: Table 6: Include a legend for the acronyms used. Complete the title of the table as well.
RESULTS: Table 7: Include a legend for the acronyms used. Complete the title of the table as well.
- DISCUSSION: To further explore the dialogue with the literature on the association found between human rights violations and sociodemographic data.
- CONCLUSION: Check if the conclusion is able to answer the objective of the study more assertively.
- REFERENCES: Try to reduce the proportion of references published more than 5 years ago.
