For the authors: It is necessary to enrich the article with a stronger literature revision (relevant literature); the article is interesting but it lacks of a more structured study, this is, the specification of the methodology, questions to answer or problem; when you present the questions answered by students, we, readers, didn't read previously nothing about a survey, so, I advise you to put it at the methodology for instance. It would be able to get a stronger article. Also, and for future work, it might be interesting to do a comparative analysis on "How is it now, after COVID, there is still some learning and teaching done with support in distance technologies?".
