Enjoyed reading this very actual article:

- I would like to see more descriptions or even characterizations of the types of violence. I understand that the authors described verbal and physical violence, however as the title suggests I was looking for the characterization and not only a description.
- The study says that it is an observation study, but I'm only seeing a survey report. Do the authors think about physically observing the emergency room?
- The authors use the term workplace violence, but they describe violence perpetrated by patients and companions. I got a bit confused because I was hoping to see something related to violence perpetrated by colleagues. Do the authors feel that this could also be interesting?
