The article, though from a study conducted 8 years ago, is still relevant not only for the UAE but also for sub-Saharan countries. The title, however, would require fine-tuning. The paper is well-structured.

The abstract should capture the essence of the study, leading to the objectives, and briefly describe the methodology employed, the results obtained, the discussions, and the conclusions reached.

The article should be checked thoroughly for formatting and edited for ease of reading and understanding.

The authors should relate the outcome of this practical experience to the traditional on-station breeding strategies.
