Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

I liked the paper and the conclusions too. I would suggest the author to further illustrate the issues indicated by the passage “We propose to look at Thomas Metzinger’s ...as an ideological manifesto warning about the potential dangers of the uncontrolled development of AI technology in general, especially if it is left in the hands of technologists, businesses, military establishments, and moneyed interests”. I indeed personally think that without a critique of the predatory and dangerous outcomes of a neoliberal capitalistic economy, it is impossible to address the essence of the potential evil of AI products, and also to avoid repeating what I consider boring, totally sterile ethical considerations.
