

Review of: "Human Rights Aspects in Infrastructure Projects in the President Regulation Number 120 Year 2022"

Dhani Setyawan<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Ministry of Finance

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

- Consider incorporating case studies or real-world examples to illustrate the practical implications of the human rights considerations discussed in the article. This would enrich the analysis and make it more engaging for readers.
- Explore the potential role of civil society organizations, local communities, and other stakeholders in promoting human rights in infrastructure projects under President Regulation 120/2022. Analyzing their involvement and impact could provide valuable insights into grassroots efforts to safeguard human rights.
- Expand the discussion on environmental regulations and their intersection with human rights in infrastructure development. Delving deeper into how environmental protection measures can contribute to the realization of human rights would add depth to the analysis.
- Consider integrating a comparative perspective by examining how other countries address human rights issues in infrastructure projects, particularly in similar socio-political contexts. Drawing lessons from international experiences could offer valuable insights for policymakers and practitioners in Indonesia.

Overall, while the article offers a comprehensive analysis of the human rights aspects of infrastructure projects under President Regulation 120/2022, there is room for refinement and deeper exploration of certain issues to enhance its scholarly rigor and practical relevance.