

Review of: "Agile Learning: An innovative curriculum for educators"

Raghu Echempati¹

¹ Kettering University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The paper brings a new and integrated learning environment proposal for the educators to try to adapt when offering or modifying a current course that they teach. The paper is written well. However, it adds value if an example course is taken up by the authors and compare & contrast the differences (strengths and weaknesses) between the 'traditional course' and a 'modified course' that the authors might have developed incorporating some or all of the ideas presented in this paper.