

Review of: "Prevalence and Predictors of Moral Injury in Chinese Physicians"

Wiesław Fidecki<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Medical University of Lublin

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article will raise an important and current issue regarding medical personnel. Modern medicine and its development also affect the functioning of staff.

The authors carefully presented the theoretical basis of the research.

I propose to include "the Aim" part in the text, followed by the theoretical part.

The methodological part is correct. The research method, research tools, and consent of the ethics committee were presented. The research results were presented clearly. The discussion was conducted thoroughly and correctly. The list of references has been selected correctly thematically, and the editions are very up-to-date.

In my opinion, the article is valuable, and I recommend its publication.