

Open Peer Review on Qeios

Adenohypophysitis

INSERM

Source

INSERM. (1999). Orphanet: an online rare disease and orphan drug data base.

Adenohypophysitis. ORPHA:95512

Adenohypophysitis is a rare, acquired pituitary hormone deficiency, a type of primary hypophysitis characterized by an inflammation of anterior pituitary. Clinical presentation is variable and includes headaches, visual disturbances, symptoms of adrenal insufficiency, hyperprolactinemia, hypothyroidism and hypogonadism. It most commonly affects young women during pregnancy or postpartum period.