The study focuses on an extremely important topic, which still lacks theoretical-empirical research. The theoretical and practical contextualization is done adequately. However, due to the lack of information about how the results were achieved, it is impossible to analyze the results. In this sense, it is necessary for the authors to describe a) what was the size of the sample of respondents, how many respondents were chosen from each unit, b) what were the criteria followed to choose the respondents, c) how the data were collected, d) how the data were organized and analyzed and d) how the results were generated, what techniques were used.
