The topic is interesting, but I would like to make some suggestions to improve the article.

Introduction: present the problem using current references (there is also quite old references partly in the text). The introduction is lacking information related to the problem which necessitated the study.

In the methodology part, you should include detailed information of the research design, population, sampling method and sample size. And, specify more about the questionnaire, specifying some more relevant questions. What about exclusion criteria for participants? Methodology needs further elaboration.

Results are quite shortly and incomplete reported.

The discussion of the article should be more in-depth and show the limitations of the work. Were there any potential biases or generalizability issues in the study?
