

Review of: "The Parental Role in Child Sexuality: A Phenomenological Study"

David Jean Simon¹

¹ Université Panthéon-Sorbonne (Paris I)

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Thank you for choosing me to review this article. Although it deals with an extremely important topic, this work needs major corrections.

Without wishing to offend the authors, the presentation of this manuscript is not scientific. In addition, there are missing words in some sentences, one-sentence paragraphs and so on.

The authors have not made it clear why they chose parents whose children are aged between 6 and 10. In some countries, sex education begins in adolescence. Further, the results are not discussed in detail. To expect publication of this article, the authors must make a considerable effort. I suggest that they enlist the help of qualified researchers to better structure the article and analyse the results.