The article addresses an interesting issue that is certainly suitable for an article and further development. Formally, I have no comments - the notes and article structure do not raise any concerns or doubts. The text structure is well thought out.

The literature selection is correct and proper. Substantively, the article includes a report section as well as some original conclusions and thoughts, with which one may agree or disagree, but they certainly provide a good starting point for discussion. Surely, the article contributes some new insights.
