The paper presented a case with Pott's puffy tumor, and after some treatments, the patient recovered completely. The authors conclude that Pott's puffy tumor can be prevented by using appropriate antibiotics. It was interesting. However, I have some comments.

1. The ethic content should be mentioned in the case presentation.
2. Images should be presented during operation if possible.
3. Figures should be reorganized. Some images were redundant. Follow-up examinations should be presented.
4. Where was the pathological examinations?
5. Differential diagnoses should be discussed in the Discussion section.
6. Up-to-date references should be searched and presented.
