

Review of: "Web-Based Crime Management System for Samara City Main Police Station"

Kelvin Kris C. Gonzales<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Isabela State University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

I commend the writers for taking the initiative to share their project to create a web-based crime monitoring tool.

Regarding the work given, the authors may consider the following IMRAD format: Introduction; Materials and Methods; Results; and Discussion and Conclusion.

The abstract is the summary of the whole document, indicating the brief introduction, problem statement, methods for the solution, and the main results that have been obtained.

General objectives state what the research expects to achieve overall; however, the specific objectives must break this down into smaller, logically connected parts and address various parts of the identified research problem.

On the methodology, there is a lack of testing of the web pages that have been developed.

The author may consider showing the effectiveness of the developed system in the results and discussion, or may consider aligning the result with what the objectives have to resolve or address.