Well written and easy to understand paper. However, some aspects need to be observed:

- The abstract is a little long to be considered an abstract. Upon reaching the introduction, the reader may find themselves already tired due to the lack of brevity presented previously.
- The design of the methodology could be better described. The plain text format, without the use of specific sections, leaves the article with a very informal appearance.
- For a topic with an extensive range of references, a more in-depth discussion would be interesting, correlating what is found in the literature with tables or graphs.
- Finishing with a brief conclusion would be interesting. The article ends with the feeling that something more needed to be written.
