This is a concise article rich in meaning presented in a perspective format. The strengths of the article are evident in: 1) the detailed data provided as supporting justification for the issue, and 2) the presentation, which is brief, concise, clear, and follows a logical framework that is easy to understand. To ensure the article's suitability for publication in a reputable journal, the author should consider adhering to the systematic presentation required by the target journal. This is my comment, expressing appreciation to the author for addressing public health issues that may be overlooked by policymakers and authorities.
