

Open Peer Review on Qeios

Neurotransmitter

David F Marks

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

A chemical that enables the transmission of signals from one neurone to the next across synapses. They are also found at the axon endings of motor neurones, where they stimulate the muscle fibres. They and their close relatives are also produced by some glands such as the pituitary and the adrenal glands.