The manuscript entitled "The symptomatic expression of infection with the Omicron variant in Chinese patients; findings from the Clificol COVID-19 clinical case registry" has research value however it can not be considered for publication with its form as can be addressed in the following points:

- The authors need to remove such subtitles of abstract.
- The introduction part needs to be more concluded and review previous studies and provide research gap.
- The construction of methods needs to be reconsidered to provide the following results of academic research.
- The results and discussion present a greet sections, but the authors should add proposed promising applications.
- The conclusion part should be provided.
