

Review of: "Exploring the Role of Social, Economic, and Cultural Factors in Community Development: A Social Work Perspective in T/A Chimwala, Mangochi"

Mufaro Dzingirai¹

¹ Midlands State University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This research is capturing an interesting topic in the development discourse. Nonetheless, there is a plethora of pressing issues that must be addressed by the authors. In this regard, the researchers are salient on the population size. How many people were considered as target population? For instance, 100 people. Worryingly, the use of both probability and non-probability sampling techniques are compatible with mixed methods not quantitative study. The same applies to data collection methods. Notably, please capture the sample size, validity and reliability. There is a dire need to capture the inferential statistics rather than just descriptive statistics only in order to test associations among variables. Given that the methodology is very weak, the results become questionable. Moreover, the areas for further research must be reported.