

Review of: "Knowledge, Practices and Attitude of Residents towards Buruli Ulcer in Jasikan Municipality: An Ethnographic Study"

Mohammad Khairul Alam Sobuj¹

¹ Bangladesh Fisheries Research Institute

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The manuscript is interesting. But it needs major revisions before publication. My insights are given below:

Title: As this study follows the KAP model. The title should be "Knowledge, Attitude, and Practices of Residents....."

Abstract: Please rewrite and summarize your background statement in the abstract. Avoid unnecessary information.

Introduction: The Introduction section was very poorly written. There is no justification, background information or clear objectives. Please rewrite the whole section. Please also add some KAP-related information here. You can get help in some recent publications related to the KAP model (<https://doi.org/10.1002/fsn3.3004>).

Materials and Methods: The number of respondents is very low. In a KAP study, only 20 participants cannot give significant outcomes. The low number of participants is a major limitation of this study. Furthermore, the piloting of the study was not conducted.

Results: The results were well explained. Please try to present your KAP results in a table. These will be more helpful for the reader to understand your findings.

Discussion: Please improve this section with some recent publications related to the KAP model.

Conclusion: Please rewrite this section by emphasizing the purpose of the study as well as the key findings.

Finally, the current format of this manuscript should not be considered for publication. It must need major revisions before publication.