Although the topic is of major importance, yet the paper lacks many key issues. (1) the problem statement should be clearly stated, (2) there should be research questions based on the theoretical framework used, (3) there should be literature review, which you need to refer to in the discussion, (4) the theories/models used should be explained in details and give the reasons for adopting them in particular, (5) in the method section, more clarifications re the instrument sections and items should be provided, (6) none of your survey questions is related to the theories/models adopted, (7) your results are lengthy, no need to put both a table and a figure for the same question, (8) the discussion should be critical with reference to literature review.
