

Open Peer Review on Qeios

Severe hereditary thrombophilia due to congenital protein C deficiency

INSERM

Source

INSERM. (1999). Orphanet: an online rare disease and orphan drug data base. Severe hereditary thrombophilia due to congenital protein C deficiency. ORPHA:745

Congenital protein C deficiency is an inherited coagulation disorder characterized by deep venous thrombosis symptoms due to reduced synthesis and/or activity levels of protein C.