

Review of: "[Commentary] Healthspan Horizon — Pioneering Preventive Care as the New Standard of Healthcare"

Mohd Mahmeen¹

¹ Siemens Healthineers

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Providing a comprehensive review of the evolving health terrain towards proactive prevention for needful change, the manuscript skillfully examines the factors that drive this change, including population changes, increases in the prevalence of chronic diseases, and economic challenges. It is significant to mention early intervention services, as well as personalized healthcare programs and innovative technologies, that sum up a forward-thinking approach to medicine.

The manuscript has stressed innovation and investment's role in driving this growth and highlights the need for collaboration among stakeholders and the establishment of strategic partnerships. In addition, it outlines the problems that come with putting into practice preventive programs and suggests how these constraints can be overcome.

In general, this manuscript provides valuable insights into future healthcare direction, thereby creating a foundation for other discussions and research. The manuscript comprehensively analyses and prognosticates future trends, thus becoming one of the great contributions to the literature on preventative medicine or healthcare innovation. Consequently, I would like to recommend it for publication.