Thank you very much for the opportunity to review this intriguing work. I believe the results are worthy of publication; however, the paper would benefit from significant shortening, particularly in the introduction, which should be more concise and focused on the paper's aim. The previous literature should be reviewed in the discussion section, with a specific comparison to the findings of the present study. Additionally, the language should be revised by a native English speaker, as, although generally well-written, there are some passages that are difficult to fully understand.
