

Review of: "Women Empowerment: Policy Evidences from Ethiopia and Kenya"

Amanda Metcalfe

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This is a great area to focus on. I like that you can get detailed information on the two countries here. The recommendations are the best part of this article. The presentation of policies and supporting data as to the impact could be condensed, even built into a table with summarizing commentary in the body. I do like how the areas of policy and intervention are parsed out. There could be a section where you present some case-study information on where and how you have seen your recommendations work. Perhaps another region? Overall condensing information and making the interventions easier to find is my #1. It never hurts to tell a story in these sorts of articles. I know it's descriptive but individual or community stories of inequity are compelling and draw the reader in to the narrative.