

Review of: "Quality assessment program of the teaching activity of the higher education faculty staff. A case study"

Gonca Uludağ

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article reveals its purpose. language is clear and understandable.

The information about The National Agency for Quality Assessment and Accreditation (ANECA) should be a little more detailed in the 2nd chapter, so we can get to know it better. Because readers may not be familiar with the Spanish higher education system.

I hesitate to say that it is exactly a case study. because in the case study the situation is discussed in detail. We do not know about the other possibilities and features of UPV.

I suggest that they also review the literature on management models in higher education and enrich the text. I hope the suggestions will be useful to researchers.

Best wishes,