

Review of: "Health System Reform: Decentralization of Health System in Pakistan"

Angela Chaudhuri

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Seems like an important paper. However, the findings are not new and are available in the literature. It would be good to understand what actions the government needs to take, e.g., there's an allusion to capacity building - perhaps it's about setting aside investments/budgets for capacity building. The article describes Pakistan's health system, which has been described earlier in publications. I am looking for something new or a deeper understanding of the problem.