The paper needs improvement: Following are a few suggests:

1. There is a mismatch in focus and data analysis of the paper. Introduction and review of literature have already pointed out the problem and its possible solutions, the results section does not add much value to it. I would suggest focusing on the nature of problem faced by the stakeholders and reasons for the delay or non-response of authorities (like lack of funds, paperwork, corruption etc) for empirical examinations. The respondents can be asked questions to understand these aspects in detail. Ask whether the stakeholders have raised the issue and what was the response from authorities.
2. Provide the basic information (average/frequency) on respondents like name of the institutions, type of the institution (public/private/funded by national or international agencies), the respondents' association with the institutions (student/faculty/non-teaching staff), and years of a respondents' experience. It will provide validity to the results.
