Dear authors,

1- In the abstract, you should clearly present the aims of the study, then the methodology, then the findings and then the recommendations.

2- Literature review should be added to the study.

3- Before the conclusion, you should present "Results and discussion" section. In this section, you can discuss the results that you reached and then also you can compare your results and the results of previous studies. Here you can identify which previous studies can support your results.

Best Regards,
