Firstly, the title is in a very accusive tone, and needs to be changed.
GPEI strategy was launched in 1988. The world is wiser now. The article has very good points, but needs to tone down. Modernization and new methodology put in stonger concepts, especially the existence of RNA viruses as quasispecies, and their mutations and combinations. those topics need to be touched.
I different reasons behind the problems that were observed should be given. The article is a bit biased in that aspect. All aspects are not mentioned. So blame is not balanced.
