

Review of: "The Ancient Indian Knowledge System and the Medical Sciences"

Priyam Sharma

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The author in this article tries to provide glimpses of the medical science that prevailed in ancient India and by doing so attempts to justify the concepts of ancient Indian medical sciences.

I would like to point out the following changes that can be made in the paper to make it more critical.

1. the section on the origin of Indian medicine should come after the introduction and then move to the Vedas and chronology of Indian medicine.
2. the author gave instances of similarity between traditional medical practices and allopathy line of treatment. However the author can elaborate on the similarities to be able to bring her point on the justification of Indian medical system.
3. the methodology of the research is not clear and needs to be explained.
4. with these changes, the paper can be accepted for publishing.