

Review of: "Stakeholders' Perceptions of Hospital-Based Early Childhood Parenting Education Services: A Thematic Analysis"

Ambreen Merchant¹

¹ Aga Khan University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

More qualitative research on incorporating ways of educating new parents is much needed. This study can serve as a feasibility or pilot to answer the research question on a larger sample size. Also, the research methods and tools could have been more rigorous to answer the research question. Many participants talked about their pregnancy experiences rather than their perspective on parenting education services; I suggest the authors share the tools used or the questions of IDIs as supplementary files.