Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

1-) You can write the following sentence concisely.

Schizophrenia and psychosis, in general, are health problems for a lot of patients around the world.

2-) You can mention if it's a narrative review, review, or research article in the abstract.

3-) You can briefly explain the goals of the study in the abstract.

4-) The figures can be improved. There is a website name in one of the figures. It should be added as a reference.

5-) You can add more references to support the information.

6-) You can add a reference for the following sentence:

After all, the effect on the dopamine D2 receptor (D2R) is measured when a high dose of PCP is present. For the most part, the psychotic-like features of PCP are dose-dependent and more likely to occur in low doses, and begin to potentiate its effects with the increase in dosage. That was the basis for the Glutaminergic hypothesis.

7-) You suddenly mention sleep in the second paragraph of the introduction. You may improve the flow of the manuscript.
